

SIX MONTHS MAY ELAPSE BEFORE WEST PENN POWER COMPANY FULLY RECOVERS

With 40 Extra Men Working That Time Will Be Needed to Undo Storm Damage.

COKE PLANTS WORKING

Rapid Progress Made in Getting Main Feeders from Plant in Operation Again. No Promise Made When Streets of City Will Be Lighted.

An idea of the extent to which the West Penn Power Company suffered through the severe frost and wind storm that swept the coke region on Tuesday, the 22nd, was given this morning by Superintendent C. C. Gallagher, who declared it might be a job of six months even with a force of 40 extra men working steadily to put the service back to what it was previous to the gale.

Coke plants are again operating on electric power and all the primary lines will be back in order by tonight, he said. He could give no information as to when street lights might be expected to be given full and complete consideration. He said, however, that it was a big proposition.

Not only in this city is the lighting problem confronting the power superintendent. On the outskirts and throughout the region secondary lines are in a tangled mass and to get them in shape will require weeks of work.

H. P. Chambers, general superintendent of the West Penn Power Company, with offices in Pittsburgh, was here last night and this morning to look over the situation. He is a steady able to see that the how was the severest ever dealt his company. He left before noon for Pittsburgh.

All the linemen brought in to restore order are still working steadily and great advances are made every day, but so heavy was the damage that the restoration process will seem slow.

Each day sees service restored to additional consumers and this work will continue until every home and industry is supplied. The public in situations including the schools and hospitals are now all cared for.

In the Braddock region there are slight or no high tension poles down will be necessary to replace them. To supply just about as many consumers. To a regular time and it is such conditions that it is the West Penn Power Company.

The normal working force here is about 20 men and this will remain a little less than to expedite the restoration of a relief everywhere.

West Penn trolley service was almost normal again today with the exception that cars are running somewhat late due to the fact that the trolley system is not yet working. To avoid collisions cars are required to observe a rigid passing policy. When one car arrives at such a place it is to remain on the side until the other car has passed. Although this is a simple matter it has not been so simple since the storm.

Street cars in this region are operating on all points. The only exception is that it did not go to the town of Ligonier and Hoopa. Snow and ice covers the rails in some places. Cars are running from Hoopa to Ligonier. It was expected this line would be opened this afternoon.

Considerable difficulty was experienced in reopening the South Connellsville line. A large force was kept busy until 6 o'clock when the end of the line was finally reached. A novel plan for breaking up the ice and snow covering the tracks was carried out. A tractor was secured from the H. M. Moore Company and a harrow was hitched to it. This combination worked successfully. Until the end of the line was reached a shut car service was inaugurated as the trolley operating as far as the tracks were open.

Through the 11 o'clock of the main line was reopened at 11 o'clock yesterday morning. Shuttle service from Ligonier to Fairbairn was operated however while the line to the latter place was being cleared. It was necessary to use the rotary show now to get through to Fairbairn. A crew composed of S. J. Whitmaster, mechanic, R. W. Fisher, inspector, and Charles Wood, freight car conductor, handled the job. It was the first time it had been needed in about four years. The flow returned here about midnight. The trolley line finally opened the line at about 1 o'clock this morning.

Dickinson 100 people got through service at 1:15 o'clock yesterday morning.

WATCH FOR FALLING ICE WARNING HOODS.

The danger from ice sliding off roofs of houses and other buildings still existed today and motorists warning to pedestrians to watch overhead and be prepared to dodge falling icicles was repeated.

In some instances yesterday's thaw was only sufficient to loosen the icicles slightly and in places there is from one foot to 18 inches of ice shooting out over the edges of roofs. It is hoped that tonight's rain and snow will melt the ice and prevent it from falling.

REMARKABLE RECOVERY OF MRS. SPINK

Gives Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Full Credit

Min. June, Wis. "I was under treatment, but nothing seemed to help me, and so weak that I had to remain in bed much of the time and was like an invalid. I had pain in my abdomen and in the female organs, and my stomach bothered me. My husband saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised, thought it must be good, and brought it home to me and advised me to try it. After taking one bottle I was able to eat, and after six bottles I was doing my own work, which I hadn't been able to do for years. I have a new baby who is doing nicely, and I am still taking the Vegetable Compound and feeling better than I have for four years. The medicine is surely wonderful and good thing to have in the house."—Mrs. GEORGE SPINK, Minnesota Junction, Wisconsin.

A country-wide canvass of purchasers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound reports 98 per cent. benefited. For sale by druggists everywhere.

Save Power Where Power is Produced

TO A CERTAIN degree, all motor oils burn away with each explosion of your motor. The oil with the highest fire-resistant test burns away least, and separates best the surfaces of your motor which tend to rub.

Upon this separating film of oil, depends two things—the ease with which a motor turns over, and the amount of power which "leaks" past your piston. Upon both of these conditions, depends the amount of power delivered to the rear wheels.

—all other conditions being equal. This chain of facts explains why users of FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil notice increased power on the hills; why they notice a quicker "get-a-way." FREEDOM Perfect Motor Oil has an exceptionally high heat and fire test. It reduces friction, maintains an oil seal and saves power where power is produced.

THE PRESENT CONTROVERSY

The controversy over the proposed new home-building law in this state is a subject which has been discussed in the columns of this paper for some time. It is a subject which has attracted the attention of many of our readers, and it is one which has been discussed in the columns of this paper for some time.

OUR HOME-OWNING FACILITIES AND ADVANTAGES

The advantages and desirability of owning one's home are so generally conceded that there is much less need than formerly to present arguments and reasons why persons should strive to attain this goal. The principal difficulty by which many prospective home owners are confronted is how to proceed with home-building and home-furnishing while at the same time meeting the demands of day-to-day living.

Through the medium of the second section of The Courier today and next Wednesday and in conjunction with the publication of the building and equipment of a model home at the Paramount and Sonson theatres on Monday and Tuesday the people of Connellville will be given an extraordinary opportunity to study the home-owning proposition and to familiarize themselves with all the details to be met in the construction of a home. A complete and well equipped home will be shown to the public in the afternoon of Wednesday and Thursday. The city's business and local associations on this home-owning day are urged to send their individual members in harnessing the erection of a home by plans which permit the patron of these exhibitions to pay rent to the owner of the home instead of paying to the contractor. Our building contractors are splendidly equipped by long experience and capable staff of executive and workmen to build homes of every kind and design. Builders, including carpenters and electricians are at the command of the builder of elaborate as well as modest homes and can supply all the needed conveniences which contribute so much to the comfort of home owners and in cases with which housewives can perform their daily duties. The home-furnishing establishments of the city are prepared to supply every article of necessity and even of luxury which the occupants of a home may find it desirable to obtain.

It is here that is available to home owners and builders a Connellville everything required to transform a vacant lot into a cozy home-nest that will bring to the occupants all the delights and pleasures of being able to sit under their own vine and fig tree.

This is an ambition worthy to be achieved by every family and is possible to all who will set their minds to the task and take advantage of the many Connellville men and establishments have placed at the disposal of home builders. By planning and acting with not too early and no time will be better to enter upon the undertaking.

WE SHOULD NOT FORGET

There is not much glamour about the stern and dangerous business of untangling masses of twisted wires, snatching loose-corded poles and replacing those broken or worn down by the storm of Tuesday night, and working long hours, day and night with brief intervals for food and sleep, but it is the task to which hundreds of men in the employ of the West Penn Power Company and Tri-State telephone companies have been addressing themselves with great vigor and tirelessness since the services of these public utilities were interrupted.

The work of repairing the damage brought about by the storm and restoring the means of transportation and communication is being done in a fine spirit, and with the determination to overcome all difficulties as quickly as possible. The men so engaged are imbued with a sense of loyalty which their employers have every reason to appreciate. To the men themselves it is very much a matter of honor all in a day's work knowing that previous experience that such conditions are liable to arise every winter.

While they may grumble at the disagreeable features of their task they really have a job in doing big things like those now engaging the thought, attention and time of every member of their respective forces.

THE LOVE BRAND—On view to day at this theatre features Roy Stewart with his new picture. It is a splendid play of action scenes and the last act of the famous Santa Margarita race in one of the last remaining ranches of the old Spanish land grants in California was utilized in the making of the production. The track contains approximately 200,000 acres having within its boundaries mountains, plains, desert rivers and lakes and extending to the Pacific shore to the Atlantic and Indian groups of the southern part of the state.

WOMEN MEN MARRY—The leading attraction today at this theatre presents E. K. Lincoln and Florence Dixon in interesting roles.

The story opens with a novel situation that in which a rich man adopts the little daughter of his cook and her father to take the place of his daughter who died at birth to go with his wife. The understanding is that the child's parents will be returned to his employ but the child must be taught to believe that her foster-father is her real parent. There are some effective heart interest touches, one particularly in which the girl's real mother appears a cake with whom she comes upon her return from Europe and the offering is received by the happy girl.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Mary Alden will be featured in "The Empty Cradle."

The Orpheum

THE SILENT COMMAND—The picture, a drama, Love, Action, Adventure, Variety, Musical, is on view today at this theatre.

The locale of the story shifts from New York and Washington to the Panama Canal with scenes showing U. S. warships and skulking craft controlled by the enemies of the nation. Clashes of arms follow on the Panama Canal. Day are shown. There are remarkable examples of the working of the wireless at sea. A terrible fight during a storm between Dentur and the chief of the plot is followed by a shipwreck that is the scene of thrilling realism. Through the entire plot runs a beautiful thread of love and affection.

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday Richard Barthelmess will be seen in "The Fighting Blade."

In constructing its open car bodies, Buick uses bolts in fastening the metal braces to the wood, instead of ordinary screws. These bolts pass completely through the wooden frame prevent joints from loosening under driving strains. A more than usual number of bolts secure the Buick body to the chassis, holding it rigidly in position and entirely eliminating all squeaks and rattles.

Advices Mothers

Mrs. OSCAR R. MOWELEY

Harrisburg, Pa.—During my last expectancy my nerves gave way. I got very weak and was so nervous I could not sit still, could not sleep and was completely worn-out. I suffered with pains across my back and up my spine, also had bearing pains. I had indigestion and heartburn very badly. I was just about "down and out" when I began taking Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and it corrected all my troubles, made me feel well and strong right up to the last. I had compared myself to suffering—the quiet time I ever experienced—and I had a very healthy baby. My advice to the expectant mother is, take "Favorite Prescription." It is a wonderful help in motherhood and no woman should go through this trying time without its aid.—Mrs. Oscar R. Mowley, 327 Dauphin St.

McReady Breaks World Airplane Altitude Record; Nearly 8 Miles

By United Press.
DAYTON, Feb. 22.—Lieutenant John A. MacReady, army air pilot today broke the world's altitude record by climbing 41,000 feet. His time was two hours and three minutes.

"To grow and keep in perfect health, everyone should be not only everyone's plan, but should be also everyone's duty."

HOUSEHOLD HINTS

An alarm clock in a fine thing to set in the kitchen when baking cake, pudding, bread or in fact any kind of food. One is so apt to forget how long the bread has been baking. Set it at the time one is to start getting dinner, too.

A cheap little alarm with a creak or pencil hung on the kitchen wall will help to doing the cooking. When any staple is getting low a note to that effect will call it to mind. A good reminder for work to do or engagements that might be neglected is thus handy.

If the hands are rubbed with a mixture of salt and cornmeal after pooling onions or handling fish, then washed in cold water the odor will be removed.

To remove obstinate marks for covers on turned fruit dip them in boiling water for a minute or two, then unscrew easily.

Melt butter and heat milk when adding to mashed potatoes—then they will beat up light and fluffy.

Corrosive wash will not become lumpy when cooking if the water is boiling and the cornmeal is mixed with a little cold water to pour into the boiling water. Stir until well-mixed and cook until thoroughly done. Add a tablespoonful of butter to the hot mush—it improves the flavor and it will fry better.

Do not put the dressing on salads that contain lettuce until ready to serve as it loses its crispness.

When baking potatoes clip the ends, wash well, then rub with any sweet fat. The skin will be thin and edible when baked. Roll the potato and crack to let the steam escape—this will make a moister potato.

Newspapers laid around the stove when frying cakes or broiling steaks will save many a spot on the floor. The papers may be gathered up and burned and much work be saved.

When cooking steak add the seasoning after the steak has been well seared over on both sides. Salt draws out the juices of the meat if added before it is cooked.

Potato peelings put into the furnace or kitchen stove will keep the flues clean.

Burns Healed Without Leaving A Scar

My sister was burned last winter when putting coal oil on a deodored fire and the flames burst out into her face. We used nothing but San-Cura and didn't even have a physician and in almost an incredible short time her face was perfectly healed without a scar. It is the finest thing for burns that I have ever seen. Have also used it for other things, such as a infected toe and immediately it was healed. (Helen S. Price, 18 Iowa Circle, Washington, D. C. Cokers Take Spurt in Last Quarter and Down Norwin's Clever Floor Team, 20-15

MT. PLEASANT TONIGHT

High School Is Slow Getting Under Way; Lack of Practice This Week Tells.

Lack of practice this week, as a result of the absence of any lights in the high school gymnasium until Friday had its effect on the Connelleville Champions, the Coker Wonders, in the final game of the W. P. I. A. League last night with Norwin High School. The locals won, 20-15, making nine victories and one defeat in Section Three, where they are titleholders. The only defeat was a 21-23 loss at Indiana.

Fans who attended the game last night were treated to a nerve-racking battle, intensified by its closeness but did not see their backs open up until the final quarter. By that time the Cokers had smoothed out the rough edges and got going in regular form. The final quarter, which opened with first Connelleville and then Norwin trailing, developed into a whirlwind finish that the visitors could not check. Connelleville overcame the lead and by some pretty team work and good shooting forged ahead.

Norwin had a husky aggregation of players and the visitors got away to a handsome start when three attempts at long distance goals were successful. Mountain Connelleville was putting up a poor exhibition of passing and until the team settled down later on there was no stopping the walling basketballers.

The line-up: C. H. S.—20. Norwin—15. Noland, O'Donnell, F. Albright, O'Donnell, F. Newlin, LaRue, G. Davis, Welsh, G. Hudson, George, G. Kramer.

Substitutions—Will for O'Donnell, Van Gorder for Will, O'Donnell for Van Gorder, Hoffman for Newlin, Sullivan for Kramer, Newlin for Albright.

Field goals—LaRue 2, Kramer 2, Noland, O'Donnell, Newlin, Davis, Hudson.

Free throws—Noland, 1 out of 1; O'Donnell, 1 out of 1; LaRue, 4 out of 10; George, 3 out of 5; Albright, 1 out of 2; Kramer, 1 out of 3; Newlin, 3 out of 5.

Jack Revesta, Yutzy in Main Boxing Card

"Joe Mullon, formerly of Monaca, Pa., now of Snook, would like to meet any one of his weight at the boxing show to be staged in Connelleville March 1," says a letter from Joe to The Courier. "My weight is 110 pounds. My address is Box 182, Snook, Pa."

Mullon is requested to write Harlan, care of The Courier, Connelleville, stating his experience, references, and whether or not he is licensed.

Arrangements for the boxing show are under way and are being completed faster than expected. The main card will be between Jack Revesta, the battling Italian from Wilkes-Barre, and K. O. Yutzy of Meyersdale. The semi-final will be between Buck Weaver and Dutch Shaffer, a six round affair. Negotiations are under way for Ed Carpenter, the accomplished lad from New Kensington, and Edling Lavinoky of Kiskadee. The other light is not completed but will be announced soon.

B. & O. FLOOR TEAM WILL GET UNDER WAY HERE MONDAY NIGHT

The Baltimore & Ohio basketball team will open its season on Monday night at 8:45, at the State Armory. The opening clash will be with an opponent that has already proved the peer of any team on the Pittsburgh & Lake Erie system. The Pittsburgh team of the P. & L. E., champion of its class, will be here.

The Baltimore & Ohio outfit will be arrayed in its new uniforms. The personnel of the team is McDermick, Gardner, Shultz and Stevenson, forwards; Lowmy, center; Hanigan, Francis, Fisher, Snell and Ullig, guards.

NEIGHBORING SCHOOL WILL BE OPPONENTS OF COKERS TONIGHT

High School is scheduled to play Mount Pleasant Township team here tonight. The game will be at 8:15 o'clock. West Newton was originally scheduled for this date but because that team abandoned its schedule it was necessary to substitute the township squad.

Nelson Girls Are Winners At Johnstown

The Nelson Girls, journeying to Johnstown last night, met and defeated in one of the closest games of the season the Golden Girls, the crack female outfit of the Flood City. The Cokers displayed some high-caliber team-play that consistently kept them in the running with the opposition. The score at the end of the first quarter saw Nelson trailing, 4-3, but at the half-way mark the tables had turned and Connelleville was in front by the scant margin of a single point, 9-8.

In the third period Carolyn Tonnant did some clever work from her forward position and ably assisted by her teammates, the Nelson quintet remained in the running. At the close of that period the result was 15-14.

The final quarter was a repetition of all others. Connelleville did some remarkably good guarding with Misses McCormick and Kramer excelling. This pair cut down many possible scores and were equally as responsible as the others for the success achieved last night.

The Golden Girls are considered the peer of any female team in Cambria county and the fact that they bowed to Nelsons gives added prestige to the Coker girls. The line-up: Nelson Girls—23. Golden Girls—21. Tonnant, F. Constable, C. Guyan, F. Pringle, Buttermore, C. Hoach, McCormick, G. Golden, Kramer, G. Morris. Field goals—Tonnant 4, G. Guyan, Buttermore, Hoach 3, Pringle.

Foul goals—Nelson Girls, 11 out of 20; Golden Girls, 13 out of 16. Substitutions—Phillips for Golden, Kough for Constable, McManus for Buttermore, R. Guyan for G. Guyan. Referee—C. White.

Fans Contribute to Fund for Gold Tokens To High School Team

Between halves at the high school gymnasium last night contributions to a fund for securing gold basketballs for letter men of the Connelleville Champion High School Varsity, were collected "by fans from fans" who wanted to pay tribute in some measure to the first team that ever brought a championship to this city. "Close to $50 was collected. The committee which originated the movement and has kept it going is composed of Charles A. McCormick, O. R. Hewick and James M. Driscoll. Walter P. Morton and Warren W. Halbritter assisted last night.

Vanderbilt Boxing Promoter Injured

Peter Abate, boxing promoter of Vanderbilt, was injured Thursday evening when the 25-passenger hotel which he was driving got beyond his control and hit the bridge extending over the Youghiogheny River at Dickinson Run. "Two athletes in the left side of his face were necessary. He also received a black eye.

OF INTEREST TO FANS. When the little wonders got to Pittsburgh in the play-off for the W. P. I. A. League championship, it is going to open the eyes of some of the teams in Western Pennsylvania. The Smoky City will go wild over the "kids."

As the can into which Connelleville fans put their contributions toward a token of appreciation for the high school champions reached one little girl last night, she thought of that last time in her pocket. It was a hard thing to part with it. Then she thought of seeing those boys wearing their gold basketballs in the classrooms. Her eyes slipped into the can. "I know when I looked at those gold basketballs I would want to feel I had a part in giving them to our champions," she said.

The flowers presented the team last Saturday night were given by the Connelleville Alumni Association, but the gold basketballs will be from the proud fans of Connelleville.

When the Casey Club and Full Panthers of Pittsburgh meet at the high school Tuesday night fans will see some of the cream of floor material in Western Pennsylvania in action.

"Sir Timothy," Shopland explained, with some anger in his tone, "declines to take me seriously. I can of course apply for a search warrant, as I shall do, but it occurred to me to be one of those cases which could be better dealt with, up to a certain point, without recourse to the extremities of the law."

Sir Timothy, who had lit his cigarette, presented a wholly undisturbed front. "What I cannot quite understand," he said, "is the exact meaning of that word 'abduction.' Why should I be suspected of forcibly removing a harmless and worthy young man from his regular avocation, and, as you term it, 'abducting' him, which I presume means keeping him bound and gagged and imprisoned? I do not eat young men. I do not even care for the society of young men. I am not naturally a gregarious person, but I think I would go so far," he added, with a bow toward Miss Hyslop, "as to say that I prefer the society of young women. Satisfy my curiosity, therefore, I beg of you. For what reason do you suppose that I have been concerned in the disappearance of this Mr. Reginald Willmore?"

Francis opened his lips, but Shopland, with a warning glance, intervened.

"I work sometimes as a private person, sir," he said, "but it is not to be forgotten that I am an officer of the law. It is not for us to state motives or even to afford explanations for our behavior. I have watched your house at Hatch End, Sir Timothy, and I have concluded that the disappearance of this young man is connected with this matter with me in a different spirit, I am justified in asking the magistrature for a search warrant."

Sir Timothy sighed. "Mr. Laidman," he said, "I think, after all, that yours is the most interesting end of this espionage business. It is the you who search for motives, is it not, and pass them on to our more unscrupulous friend, who does the rest. May I ask, have you supplied the motive in the present case?"

"I have failed to discover any motive at all for Reginald Willmore's disappearance," Francis admitted, "nor have I at any time been able to connect you with it. Mr. Shopland's efforts, however, although he has not seen well to take me into his confidence, have my warmest approval and sympathy. Although I have accepted your very generous hospitality, Sir Timothy, I think there has been no misunderstanding between us on this matter."

"Most correct," Sir Timothy murmured. "The trouble seems to be, so far as I am concerned, that no one will tell me exactly what I am suspected of? I am to give Mr. Shopland the run of my house, or he will make his appearance in the magistrature's court and the evening papers will have placards with marvellous headlines at my expense. How will it run, Mr. Shopland—"

"MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF A YOUNG GENTLEMAN. MILLIONAIRE'S HOUSE TO BE SEARCHED."

"We do not necessarily acquiesce in the press with our procedure," Shopland rejoined.

"Nevertheless," Sir Timothy continued, "I have known awkward consequences arise from a search warrant too rashly applied for or granted. However, we are scarcely being polite. So far, Miss Hyslop has had very little to say."

"The young lady was not altogether at her ease."

"I have had very little to say," she repeated, "because I did not expect an audience."

Sir Timothy drew a letter from his pocket, opened it and adjusted his eyeglasses.

"Here we are," he said, "after leaving my dinner-party tonight, I called at the club and found this note."

Quite an inviting little affair, you see— young lady's writing, faint but very delicate perfume, excellent stationery, Milton Court—the home of adventure!"

Dear Sir Timothy Braas: Although I am not known to you personally, there is a certain matter concerning which information has come into my possession, which I should like to discuss with you. Will you call and see me as soon as possible? Sincerely yours, DAISY HYSLOP.

"On receipt of this note," Sir Timothy continued, folding it up, "I telephoned to the young lady, and as I was fortunate enough to find her at home I asked her to come here. I then took the liberty of introducing myself to Mr. Shopland, whose interest in my evening has been unwavering, and whose uninvited company I have been compelled to bear with, and suggested that, as I was on my way back to Curzon street, he had better come in and have a drink and tell me what it was all about. I arranged that he should find Miss Hyslop here, and for a person of observation, which I flatter myself to be, it was easy to discover the interesting fact that Mr. Shopland and Miss Daisy Hyslop were not strangers. Now tell me, young lady, Sir Timothy went on. "You see, I have placed myself entirely in your hands. Never mind the presence of these two gentlemen. Tell me exactly what you wanted to say to me?"

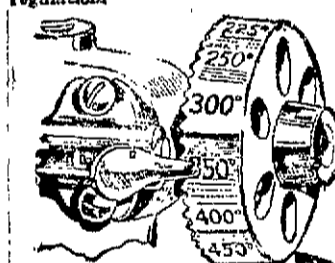

"The matter is of no great importance," Miss Hyslop declared, "in any case I should not discuss it before these two gentlemen."

"Don't go for a moment, please," Sir Timothy begged, as she showed signs of departure. "Listen, I want to make a suggestion to you. There is an impression abroad that I was interested in the two young men, Victor Bidlake and Fairfax, and that I knew something of their quarrel. You were an intimate friend of young Bidlake's and presumably in his confidence. It occurs to me, therefore, that Mr. Shopland might very well have visited you in search of information."

FIRE EXTINGUISHER MOST VALUABLE ADJUNCT TO WELL-ORDERED HOME, IN THAT IT MAY PREVENT LOSS OF LIFE

EVERY ONE MUST BE SAFEGUARDED

Prevention First Object; Means of Exit When Out Of Next Thought.

The planning, drafting, financing and construction of the new home are the natural courses to be taken into consideration before the venture. These having been accomplished there is still one other vitally important question.

"What if this—my new home—the realization of my fondest dreams—should catch fire tonight? What if it should occur while all are asleep and the smothering sound of burning timbers tell the terrible story of wreck and ruin that will have been accomplished before the fire department can arrive?"

Suppose the fire starts when you, the man of the house, are not at home and your wife and children are left at the mercy of the flames? These are all questions that must occur to every home owner. While the fire department is rushing to your assistance there are several minutes in which you can do something. In this time, perhaps you could extinguish a small fire with your own hands, if equipped in the proper manner.

There are more burglaries in homes than there are fires, yet it would be a discouraging proposition to find a home not safeguarded against the thief. People are but beginning to appreciate the necessity of installing quick-to-operate fire extinguishers in their homes. More than 15,000 fires are destroyed annually by fire, the cause of which is mostly carelessness and lack of preparedness. Each year in the United States 15,000 lives are lost, and 15,000 persons seriously injured by fire. Last year almost one-half billion of property was destroyed.

To a great extent these losses in lives and property could have been prevented if suitable fire-lighting apparatus had been close at hand. Statistics show that 65 per cent of these fires occur in homes. The largest percentage of victims are women and children. It remains for those of us who are as yet untouched by the lesson that we have been taught, and to so protect our homes and our loyal ones that we can go to sleep each night with a clear conscience and without dread.

The majority of fires can be extinguished in their infancy if proper means are at hand. While one extinguisher should be provided for each home, yet it is not amiss to say that one should be provided for each floor in the home. The fire then could be checked more quickly when discovered. It will not develop into a dangerous conflagration. On the other hand, in case the fire has gained a dangerous headway, the extinguisher will provide, oftentimes, a means of exit that might otherwise be cut off by the fire. Supposing the fire started and had burned you and your family upstairs. An extinguisher downstairs in that case would not do any good. Whereas one conveniently placed upstairs would make possible your fighting the flames back and your getting safely out of danger.

Certainly before many years this lesson will have been drilled into us. Hunting Bargains I
If so, read our advertising columns.

Here's Few Secrets In Intensive Crops

Pay special attention to companion and follow crops. A companion crop is one that grows simultaneously with another. A follow crop is, as its name indicates, something to follow and use the same soil after the first crop is harvested. Corn or cabbage would be a follow crop for radishes, early beans, lettuce or spinach.

Parley or carrots sown with radish seed is a companion crop, the seeds germinating in succession and the radishes being pulled as they mature while the parley or carrots, taking longer to germinate, will keep right on growing among the radishes, and continue after they have been pulled.

Early cabbage plants set at intervals of 18 inches among rows of early radishes or young onions to keep growing when the radishes and onions have been pulled give another example of the companion crop. By tabulating follow and companion crops closely and accurately the ground is used to its full capacity and the greatest yield secured from the garden. Plan for all the soil can carry. Fertilize to make it carry a full burden of vegetables from frost to frost.

Rotation of crops is important. It is wise not to plant plants of the same botanical order in the same positions year in and year out. Beans and peas should move across the garden and back from year to year. Members of the cabbage family should be shifted in their position. So also should corn as each of these vegetables exhausts certain elements in the soil in time and may also leave disease germs.

A convenient way of securing this rotation is to draw a plan which you can reverse. When you plant from left to right this year, next season turn it around and plant the same plan from right to left. In this way the shift will be made with the exception of the central rows. After you have worked this for a season or two, a new plan can be drawn to give more diversity of planting to the central subjects.

THE PASSING OF THE BRASS BED

The brass bed has served its day according to furniture dealers all over the country. No one seems to want it any more in its original finish. The only way the public will accept it is when it is lacquered to look like some wood, such as walnut or mahogany. There are probably several reasons for this. In the first place the wood beds lend themselves more readily to the decorative scheme of the bedroom. The popular demand is for complete bedroom suites of some wood, and for the sake of economy many manufacturers make the brass bed and require it to look like wood. It has the appearance of a solid wood bed, but it is not so expensive.

In the second place, a brass bed is hard to keep clean and shiny, and every finger mark will mar the appearance. Wood finishes can be easily taken care of and the modern housewife is watching for household furniture and appliances which will lighten her work and give her more time for better things of life.

FINISHING FLOOR VERY IMPORTANT FEATURE IN MODERN HOME BUILDING

A Few Practical Hints for Keeping It in Perfect Condition.

The finishing of an oak floor is a most important feature, involving taste and artistic or decorative effects which are the guides for the floor finisher.

First—Treat the floor with a paste filler of desired tone, to fill up the pores and crevices. To thin the filler for application, one has a choice of using turpentine, benzol, wood alcohol or gasoline to get the right consistency. Never use a liquid filler. When the gloss has left the filler rub off with excelsior or cloth, rubbing against the grain of the wood. This will make a perfectly smooth and level surface. It keeps out dirt and forms a good foundation, which is the keynote of successful floors. Allow the filler twelve hours to set or dry, then apply two coats of white shellac before applying the wax treatment. When varnish is to be used, give one coat of filler and one or two coats of varnish.

Either a wax or varnish finish may be used. The wax finish is preferred by many, due to economy and ease of renewing places that show wear. Renewing may be easily applied by housekeeper or servant.

WAX FINISH The best method of applying the wax is to take cheese cloth and double it to get added thickness; then fold into a sort of bag. Put a handful of floor wax inside and go over the surface thoroughly. It will be found that the wax works through the meshes of the cheese cloth and gives an even coat up over the floor. This prevents waste and excessive wax in spots. After the floor has been gone over with the wax and allowed to dry about twenty minutes, it is ready for polishing. Rub to a polish with a weighted floor brush, first across the grain of the wood, then with it (A clean, soft cloth may be used in place of the brush if desired) then a piece of woolen felt or carpet should be placed under the brush to give the finishing gloss. After waiting an hour, a second coat of wax should be applied in the same way and rubbed in a polish.

VARNISH FINISH This is usually more expensive than the wax finish, but it gives a very hard surface, which at the same time is elastic. One or two coats should be applied after the application of the paste filler. Any of the standard hardwood flooring varnishes will give good results.

To a lover of woods nothing could be more beautiful than an oak floor. It satisfies all the demands as regards permanency, wearing qualities and beauty. It lends a sense of pattern to the bare floor and makes of the floor itself a distinct element in the decorative scheme of the home.

A wood of less noticeable grain tends in some cases to become monotonous owing to its absence of pattern and variation in tone.

By following the suggestions outlined above, one is assured of very gratifying results.

CEDAR-LINED CHEST A WALL AGAINST MOTHS

Also Bars Buffalo Bugs and Other Insects That Invade Place.

ASK ANY HOUSEWIFE

Cedar has long been used in the making of clothes chests of all kinds. No housewife need be told of the value of this wood in the protection of furs and other items of wearing apparel against destructive pests. The cedar chest may serve quite as well to protect against the intrusions of these pests, but on the other hand, has decided disadvantages as regards storing clothing.

Every housewife has had the experience of digging frantically through her cedar chest in search of an item of apparel or possibly a woolen blanket, only to find that it had been buried way down at the bottom.

The advantages of the Cedar-lined closet are at once very apparent. Garments can be hung on individual hangers and each one is accessible at will. Easy inspection is made possible in short the Cedar-lined closet gives us all the conveniences peculiar to the ordinary closet, plus the assurance that the clothing is protected against the aforesaid pests. These closets can be arranged with drawers for bed linen and handkerchiefs. Shelves and other receptacles of cedar wood can also be arranged for such items as you do not wish to put on hangers or in drawers.

The Cedar-lined closet is especially interesting to the housewife during those months of the year when she must store garments away. In the fall she puts aside the summer garments and in the spring the woollen and furs.

Soon lining can be applied either to new or old closets, but, of course, the best time is during the period of construction. Provision is made for sealing all joints, and the ends as well as the sides of the individual pieces are matched. This insures very tight construction.

The floor as well as the shelves should be of cedar. The comparatively small expense of Cedar-lining your closets becomes an investment instead of an expense when you realize the fact that in one winter you may have destroyed by moths, if you are storing your clothing in an ordinary closet, more than the entire cost of installing Cedar-lining in all your closets. Looking at the matter in this light Cedar-lining becomes ideal insurance for the protection of your investment in clothing.

ART POSSIBLE IN EVERY HOME IN CONNELLSVILLE

Thanks to Perfected Photography Reproduction Is Made Easy.

PICTURES BEST GUIDE

As civilization has advanced, so has art. Beauty, romance, adventure and history are by no means dependent for their existence on the knowledge of writing. As a matter of fact, history, to a large extent—at least so, ancient history—is expressed more by pictorial means than by writing. Writing in its earliest form was but the outgrowth of art. Early Egyptian characters are almost exclusively made up of pictorial symbols.

Nowadays we have writing for the recording of history, romance, adventure and beauty, but in practically every case the writing is accomplished or illustrated by pictures. The human mind seems capable of grasping fundamental ideas more quickly through the medium of pictures and of reacting these ideas longer than in the case with any other medium of expression. As we advance in civilization our ability to reproduce our impressions also grows. The savage appreciates art usually in its rudest form and speaking of colors—in their crudest forms.

Subtleties of color and form are appreciated by those who have had advantage in art training and environment. No two of us have exactly the same taste in regard to pictures, and it is for this reason that the wide selection of subject made possible by modern methods of reproduction are especially valuable. Faithful reproductions of the finest of the world's masterpieces can be procured for very nominal sums.

The Art of Reproduction.

Prior to the Renaissance there existed only the original paintings and engravings of the great masters. These were very costly and could only be offered by the wealthy class. A little later (fifteenth century) the painters universally formed a habit of working side by side with engravers. It was the function of these engravers to reproduce the work of the masters.

Engraving at that time, however, had not the significance that it has at present. It was not until the introduction of the photograph by Daguerre (1839) that the science of present-day photographic reproduction began to develop. And it was not until the art of painting became more perfected than the art of engraving, and any practical appreciation.

Anyone who has had any experience with the camera can know that the beam of light from the object which is being photographed passes through the lens of the camera and strikes a light-sensitive plate at the back of the camera. A chemical action takes place on the plate as soon as the light strikes it, this action varying in intensity, depending on the degree of light which strikes the surface. While a number of developments were necessary before this principle could be applied to the making of faithful reproductions on paper of any of the masterpieces, yet fundamentally it merely involves the transference of the photographic image to metal. The plate is then immersed in an acid solution which eats away the exposed portions of the plate, the result being a reproduction of the object photographed in reverse form. A close examination of such a plate will reveal that the picture is made up of a multitude of fine dots of varying sizes, the space between the dots and the size of the dots themselves determining the intensity of tone. The plate is ready for printing. If the picture has many colors, red, blue and yellow, it will be necessary to make three, probably four, separate plates, each registering separately one of the colors found in the original. One of these plates will usually be a so-called black plate.

When put on the press, these plates are run in a definite order, first one color of ink and then the next color until the final color and plate is run and our reproduction is complete. The above description refers in particular to Four Color Process Engraving. We have another process, known as Lithography. This, in turn, according to present printing processes, may be split up into Old and New and Stone Lithography. A great many of the facsimile reproductions are nowadays printed by the offset process on paper or canvas similar in texture to that of the original production. To open, not thoroughly posted of the intricacies of printing and engraving, some of these reproductions are so faithful that discussion often rises as to whether they are originals or reproductions.

DAVENPORT BED IN EVERY HOME WILL BE HELP WHEN UNEXPECTED GUEST COMES

Trend Toward the Practical and the Shortage of Housing Facilities Leads Many Families to Appreciate the Double Usefulness of the Davenport Bed.

MADE IN MANY STYLES—DAVENPORT, BED COMBINED

By W. F. COOK

Every one has had the experience of the unexpected guest. Nothing could be more reassuring than the knowledge that in the davenport bed the possibility of keeping the unexpected guest overnight. By day it lends itself in a most charming manner to the scheme of the living room, at night it performs the humble function of bed. It serves in both capacities equally as well.

In homes of smaller size where the smallest bedrooms are available for all members of the family the davenport bed becomes probably the most important piece of furniture in the house. Owing to the tremendous popularity it has met with among all classes of people it has been very rapidly developed until now it stands almost unique in its expression of art in the home furnishing. Likewise owing to its practical use it stands very high in the esteem of millions of people. Without adding another room to the house, the davenport-bed utilizes present space now available to better advantage. There is not another piece of furniture in the home that can be said to even approximate the amount of real service that is to be gotten from the davenport. So will have the manufacturers of this useful piece of furniture kept pace with the times that the davenport-bed is now procurable in period styles that will harmonize with the finest of furnishings. It has none of the drawbacks of makeshift or combination. It represents the high-water mark of practical and artistic designs and a happy combination of both.

One simple operation and, presto we have a bed ready for the night; morning comes and with a little effort the bed can be again converted into a davenport for the day with all evidence of the room having been used as a bedroom gone.

Style to Suite.

Every thought utility has made necessary ample proportions in its Design the davenport has been constructed to meet the minute requirements for perfect comfort. The davenport-bed even though it meets a great many different tastes in furnishings is unquestionably admitted by all to fill a long felt need. It may be secured in such period styles as Queen Anne, The Brothers Adam, Renaissance, Early English, Louis XVI, Chippendale, William and Mary, Georgian, Hepp white, Stratton Colonial, Tudor, Pompeian. In fact the whole list of periods which represent the accomplishments of great artists.

Probably one of the reasons why this piece of furniture has met with such instant approval of the housewife is that it is mechanically simple. There is nothing to get out of order or to break. Perfect balance is provided for so that very little energy is expended in either opening or closing the davenport. It is of such design that it is not necessary to remove the bedding before closing the davenport. This is the real point in its design when it is closed. The point is of especial value in homes where the davenport is used before breakfast that the housewife would not have the opportunity of making it up. Simply by closing the davenport it makes the room presentable until such time as she can give the bedding proper attention.

SELECTING FURNITURE.

A Few Simple Suggestions That Will Prove of Value to You When Furnishing Your Home.

The keynote of a successful furnished living room is simplicity in the selection and placement of articles going into it. An over furnished room reveals the same lack of taste expressed in the appearance of an over-dressed individual.

Avoid using furniture that is ornate to the extent of appearing out of harmony with its surroundings. In this manner one ill-chosen article can cheapen and mar the effect of an otherwise attractive setting. Never purchase or retain an article of furniture whose combination to your room is solely decorative. In selecting new pieces always visualize how they will confront to your present scheme of furnishing.

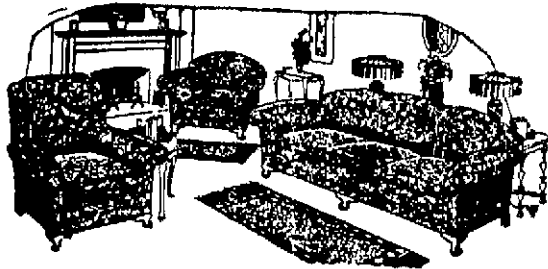

The well-appointed room is composed of permanent pieces to establish balance, and movable articles which form groupings. Permanent pieces usually consist of davenport, large chairs, piano and desk or secretary. The movable articles may be end tables, floor lamp, accentric tables, smoker, small chairs, book cabinet, etc.—DAVENPORT. Arrangement of the room is, of course, contingent upon its size in proportion to the amount of furniture to be placed into it. In the event that permanent pieces seem too large for the living room, use a large plain colored rug and place furniture as far from center of room as reasonable with ample space between objects, and avoid using small articles. Should your present pieces appear inadequate to properly fill the size room you have remember that if you group them attractively the seeming bare places will have a tendency to re-constitute the perfect and naturally pleasing balance you have established.

Choice of rug for a living room is largely a matter of individual preference. The only point to consider is that if your furniture covering and drapes are of plain material a figured rug should be used. A floor covering's purpose is to furnish softness and comfort as well as to afford

Ventilating the Home Through the Kitchen

Expert Tells How to Prevent Odors Reaching Other Rooms.

By G. C. BRIDGENT

Home ventilating is by no means a new thought. At least women have been worrying about this problem for some fifty thousand years, more or less. Why back in the Stone Age the woman of the house must have found this one of her most serious problems. In spite of the otherwise comfortable quarters provided by the cottages in the valley of Lofn in France and throughout the Neanderthal man sometimes nearly froze to death. The smoke from their domestic hearth fires was too much for their eyes and lungs to bear, and the cave man and his family were forced to take refuge and to endure the discomforts and uncertainties of the weather outside their grotto to escape the bad ventilation of the otherwise comfortable cave.

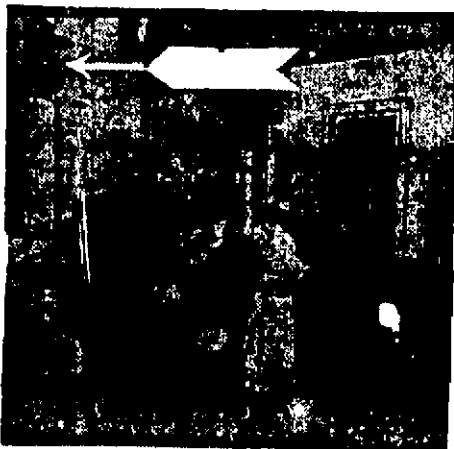

With the coming of the first house—a structure of boughs covered with clay and sod—the ventilation was by no means improved. The fire was built in the center of the door and, as no outlet had been provided except spaces and comforts, its refinement and extravagance, it is still unable to protect itself against the odors of cauliflower, cabbage, sausage, etc. Many of us have come to feel that we can only enjoy these honest, wholesome, delicious foods surreptitiously, and when we are sure no guest will arrive.

All that is needed to make the enjoyment of such foods possible is merely an electric exhaust fan in the kitchen. Better working conditions will be made possible for the cook, owing to improved ventilation and because the kitchen is kept cool. This also insures the preventing of the balance of the house from becoming overheated from the kitchen. In the next place real saving in decorations, hangings and furniture throughout the house by eliminating the fumes, smoke and soot, which invariably work their way from the cook stove throughout the house, and gradually deposit a film of grease on everything, on which, of course, dust settles and dirt clings, ruining colors, fabrics and wall papers.

Many tragic kitchen accidents can be recalled by every one of us—accidents that have taken their toll in other parts of the house by depositing

Ventilation Through the Kitchen

No Odors Can Reach the Other Rooms.

through the low doorway, the eyes soon filled with smoke and breathing became difficult.

Even in the days of the Vikings the smoke rose to the rafters of the great hall, gradually filling the room until someone had the wit to cut a hole in the center of the roof through which some of the smoke could escape. Oddly enough, this and probably was the origin of the present-day chimney, even though the chimney as we know it did not actually come into existence until the twelfth century.

Neither Greece nor Rome, nor any of the older cultures of the East had done better than to make use of an open grating in the roof. Ventilation, or rather the lack of it, like many things which we have become accustomed to, has stubbornly resisted attempts toward betterment. At the present time, however, people are no longer satisfied to be rid of smoke alone. The chimney has provided a means for disposing of it. The odors of cooking and the carbon dioxide and monoxide are still present, especially so in the case of gas and coal ranges. We desire most of all to be rid of the odors of cooking in the other rooms of the house. Of course the windows can be opened to let in fresh air, but as a matter of fact, they do not provide a good means of getting rid of the foul air. Frequently the raising of windows in the kitchen will seriously affect the fire, if not actually blow it out.

The solution, therefore, for these problems seems not to be the providing of additional means of letting in fresh air, but rather that of providing means for disposing of foul air.

Inasmuch as the kitchen seems to be the source of the many bad odors that we find in the home, it is only logical to assume that the means for disposing of the foul air should be located in the kitchen.

Electrical exhaust fans now are a household convenience. Placed in the kitchen high up near the ceiling or in an upper sash of the window, or as in some cases, exhausting directly into the chimney, this fan provides a very efficient means of disposing of the smoke and foul air and the odors of cooking. Many dishes that are otherwise savory have fallen into popular disfavor, owing to the disagreeable odors when cooking. The kitchen ventilating fan set up a current of air from and through the rooms of the house toward and through the kitchen, thus preventing the spread of odors toward the other parts of the house just as effectively as a would sealed doors between the kitchen and adjacent rooms. More so, in fact, because air, odors in the balance of the house are sucked toward the kitchen, no matter from what direction the wind may be blowing.

There is much more than merely the odor of cooking to be considered in the matter of kitchen ventilation. This alone is well worth the comparatively small cost of installing, but it is a slur on the modern home building, that with all its conveniences and comforts, its refinement and extravagance, it is still unable to protect itself against the odors of cauliflower, cabbage, sausage, etc. Many of us have come to feel that we can only enjoy these honest, wholesome, delicious foods surreptitiously, and when we are sure no guest will arrive.

All that is needed to make the enjoyment of such foods possible is merely an electric exhaust fan in the kitchen. Better working conditions will be made possible for the cook, owing to improved ventilation and because the kitchen is kept cool. This also insures the preventing of the balance of the house from becoming overheated from the kitchen. In the next place real saving in decorations, hangings and furniture throughout the house by eliminating the fumes, smoke and soot, which invariably work their way from the cook stove throughout the house, and gradually deposit a film of grease on everything, on which, of course, dust settles and dirt clings, ruining colors, fabrics and wall papers.

Many tragic kitchen accidents can be recalled by every one of us—accidents that have taken their toll in other parts of the house by depositing

The kitchen, which oftentimes, owing to its location in reference to the balance of the house, is cold, will be found to be as comfortable as any other room in the house after the exhaust fan has been installed. The same into works both ways. It will mean a warm kitchen in winter and a cool one in summer.

A Puzzle for Mother.

Choosing of Wall Paper

If more people really felt the value of their walls, more would realize the greater consideration for their own part of a room and be more conscious of what they are doing.

Too long have they been considered as background merely, calls for the furniture and hangings—little more than a frame in fact. But even the most interesting picture is often made ineffective by a frame too neutral, one not of equal importance to the picture itself. And in the same manner a very beautiful interior, perhaps filled with rare old furniture and priceless objects of art will often be surrounded by walls pitifully lacking in any pictorial interest. They are not only uninteresting, and dull in themselves but totally out of key with the spirit of the room which needs some interest in its walls to supplement the more varied and vivid interest of the other furnishings.

The tendency in decoration for the past few years has been towards plain unadorned surfaces. One rowled in paneled walls, plain rugs and furniture done in soft colors and devoid of any striking colors. Often figured hangings provided the only interest. It was a lazy form of decoration—people find it easier to plan a room with plain colors than to struggle with the problem of design, a wall as color. Slowly but surely a reaction has set in. The revival of the William Morris paper in the use of mural painting and the constant demand for figured rugs all point to an interest in a sheer design. People want the shock of some compelling pattern either in the wall or in the hangings. They are no longer content to live on blank spaces. They realize that the frame of a room should be as distinctive as the furnishings and are demanding decoration. This all accounts for the widespread interest in wall paper. American manufacturers are reconstructing old and creating new designs, and restoring them with such skill and ability that it is impossible to distinguish them from the original. Artists are constantly designing new and interesting patterns with the result that there are on the market today papers to suit practically every type of house and every form of decoration.

To get an interest in everything early American has the right to light all kinds of interesting papers. Decorating could be more delightful than a Colonial hall done in grey-green landscape paper—one that suggests vistas and distances with a design not too insistent to prevent its being just the right background for the painted colored prints so characteristic of the time and so effective in halls. The pace is narrowed a paper of this kind is an excellent choice for it serves to push out the walls besides doing great pictorial good to an interior too often dull and lacking in any real interest. For a larger more formal type of hall there are elaborate striped papers particularly lovely in two shades of cream or pale yellow as they are when in flower. Others may look very bold. With all these papers one may use either a plain or figured rug and with the landscape paper I would suggest our areas of red with some one finds in old Spanish prints.

There is a certain type of living room that demands the formality of cool paneled walls. A Georgian interior filled with Regency Eighteenth century furniture has a certain stiffness and dignity about it that makes evenly paneled wall paper a necessity. If one is to preserve the true spirit of such an interior. But many types of living rooms both formal and informal require quite a different wall paper and still keep the paneled effect. Decorative papers, Chinese designs or charming patterns with panels but the whole antique in use in connection with Eighteenth century mahogany furniture Chippendale and this treatment with striking effect.

The one thing to be remembered when using this easily figured paper either entirely or only in panels, is to keep the hangings and rugs plain or as simple in design. This does not mean they must be absolutely plain for nothing is more charming than fine striped paper provided they pick up one or more of the colors of the pattern on the walls. In this case it is advisable to use a plain fabric on the furniture as the walls provide all the necessary design. In addition to its sheer decorative quality one can often increase the apparent size of a room by using paper having a design of open spaces—shaded landscape for instance, with long vistas down which the eye likes to travel. In the same manner height can be added to a low ceiling room by a narrow striped paper which combines so well with practically any form of decoration and is not too insistent in design to be an excellent background for paintings, etchings or colored prints.

In all the history of art and architecture walls have been used as a medium of decoration. From the pictured temple walls of Egypt through the frescoes of Greece and Rome and the tapestries of the Middle Ages there has been a thread of decorative beauty which today finds its most effective expression in wall paper. In every part of the world of civilization there has been the same urge to the century wall paper has been an essential element.

HOUSEKEEPING AS A BUSINESS IS MODERN IDEA

The home is, or should be, a paying proposition. To a large degree this depends upon the arrangement of the house and the labor and time saving devices found in it.

Considering that the housewife spends over 75 per cent of her time in the kitchen for our purpose we are considering the kitchen as the center of the home. In reply to a prize offered for the best answer as to what women buy and desire such as washing machines, vacuum cleaners, dishwashers, and other appliances, the consensus of opinion indicates that women want such devices not only because of the time saving involved but because of the time saving that is permitted.

This leaves the housewife with more time to devote to her personal well-being and the pursuit of social enjoyment and study, club politics, recreation, etc.

Statistics demonstrate that most women walk a total of one hundred miles a year while doing their housework. The elimination and arrangement of the kitchen, therefore, is a very important part in the planning of a home.

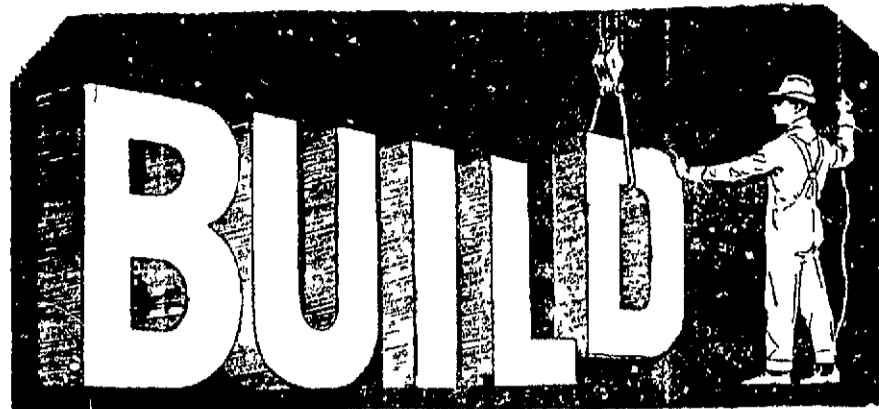

Considering all these things it seems advisable to have in the majority of cases the kitchen small rather than large, and oblong rather than square. Every kitchen should be a complete working unit within itself.

The kitchen should be so arranged that following the meal the steps taken up to the time the dishes are again stored away for another meal be in a progressive direction. That is from table to work table or counter for soiled dishes to sink to dish-board to china closet. Usually a routing of this kind going from left to right is preferable to the reverse direction. The china closet should be situated conveniently both to the sink and the dining room.

Cupboards are nowadays placed in the kitchen itself as close as possible, considering arrangement to the work table. Frequently the work table forms a shelf underneath the china closet with the cupboard built into the wall. The old-fashioned pantries which separated the kitchen from the dining room should be eliminated as it causes an unnecessary number of steps. The space that has been devoted to pantries can be more profitably used for the addition of other rooms to our house.

The main idea behind efficiency is to group your tools and working paraphernalia about your chief point of activity. This naturally means that each utensil or device should be so placed that it is quickly available at the place where it is most frequently used. The sink should be so located that during the day it receives plenty of daylight and at night artificial illumination without working in your own shadow.

Now Is The Time To Build Your "Ideal Home"

NOW is the right time to start planning for that castle of your dreams. No doubt you have been planning it in your mind for years — who hasn't. Don't delay it any longer — come in today and let us show you some plans of houses that are right up to the minute in every detail. We'll tell you how you can arrange to have it financed in case you don't have the money yourself. Be sure and consult us before letting the contract.

BUILD OR RENT? IS PROBLEM FOR EACH TO SOLVE

Discussion of Factors Which Have Bearing on Question Affecting Many.

MORAL EFFECT OF OWNING

The discussion of this problem reveals that in reality it amounts to whether you wish to pay rent to yourself or to someone else.

No matter where or how you live you are paying rent. If not to the landlord—then to yourself. The point is which pays best—rent on someone's else house or your own. You probably have been pondering much on just such questions. If you do not want the burden and responsibility of caring for a house or if this responsibility for you is heavier than that of providing the rent then for you, renting probably is cheaper.

Taxes, insurance, depreciation, upkeep and many more such items must be covered by the renter, but, in addition you must pay the landlord an ample return on his investment. Remember it is a business investment and he is entitled to a margin of profit. This varies as to locality but is rarely less than eight per cent and frequently, so government statistics tell us, as high as 13 per cent. Such a rate is necessary to protect the landlord's investment and give him due profit.

The amount of money spent yearly for the privilege of having shelter over our heads is astonishing, especially when we remember that not one dollar of it constitutes an investment toward ownership.

Periodically all renters have qualms of doubt as to whether the same amount of money is best used in a home would not prove a better investment. Perhaps you are fully satisfied yourself that home ownership is the ideal state but hesitate to make the leap because of lack of definite information as to financial obligations. You wish to know whether you would be tying yourself to an obligation heavier than your ability to meet.

Home Building an Investment
It is altogether wrong to assume that the financing of a new home constitutes the signing of your name to eternal indebtedness. No matter on what basis you pay for your home, the act remains that you get not only that your renting neighbor gets—a receipt—but in addition, a tangible, physical something that belongs to you for evermore—A Home of Your Own.

Moral Effect of Owning a Home
Quite aside from the sense of joy that one gets from owning or paying for a home, there is the moral effect that must be considered.

Many a family which otherwise would have gone from year to year accumulating nothing in the bank account have been saved from certain ruin by the systematic saving habits made necessary by the circumstance of paying for a home. Without an obligation of some such nature very few people are infallible to the extent of saving a definite amount each month. It is perfectly easy to start a savings account with the honest intention of depositing a certain amount periodically, but circumstances cause you to alter your habits and the first thing you know you have forgotten your own resolution.

It is a mistake to assume that home building requires a lot of money to begin with. Many homes all around us have been built and paid for with comparatively small initial outlay.

The proper way to look on home ownership is that it is an enterprise—a business if you please. It is a plan for investing your money in your own enterprise for safe and secure returns. But like all business it must be approached with good judgment and understanding followed up with good management.

Building for Sentiment or Profit.

Probably the most important consideration is profit when building a home. The joy, the happiness, the contentment the sense of security, the pride and a host of other considerations depending upon home ownership, often entirely outweigh the profit idea. Your home expresses your individuality. Your flowers garden, book shelves, drapings, decorating—these and many more are expressions of your personality and taste. There are many cases where individuals are engaged in commercial ventures from which they receive a large percentage for money invested. Sometimes this percentage is so large that home ownership, by comparison, has no financial inducement, and in such cases it may be cheaper to rent than to build. Because of the fact that home ownership has more to it than the mere financial side, even those who can make more money by renting are usually home owners.

Bearing in mind that home building is a business investment proposition, plus a matter of sentiment—that it is a profit-sharing plan in which you pay yourself dividends and that on the other hand renting for the landlord is also a business, and must pay him dividends, you have but one consideration—it is simply a case of whom you wish to pay dividends—the landlord or yourself. And also whether you wish to live in a house or a home.
